CHAIRMAN'S FOREWORD

I am delighted to welcome you back to the Hilton Hotel for our 26th NIFDA annual dinner. This event is always a good opportunity for our industry to come together to network and discuss the outlook for Northern Ireland's biggest manufacturing sector.

These are challenging times for Northern Ireland food and drink. Inflation has been a major challenge, and is likely to continue to be for the rest of the year at least. Food inflation is already higher than it has been at any point over the last decade, affecting customers and businesses everywhere. The ripple effect of the ongoing war in Ukraine is impacting the food supply chain globally, driving up prices for feed, fuel and fertiliser. Our industry is doing its best to absorb these increased energy, raw material and ingredient costs but inevitably we are seeing some price increases being passed on. We are constantly engaging with government, both locally and nationally, to address these rising costs, particularly energy, and we await further detail on how the prime minister's energy price guarantee will be rolled out in Northern Ireland.

Despite this challenge we have seen trade and demand remaining strong in recent times, with foodservice seeing a welcome boost as society emerged from the Covid-19 pandemic. The industry is continuing to innovate to stay on top of consumer trends, customer demands and the regulatory landscape. Sustainability remains a key priority, and great work is being done on both farm and factory floor to ensure we are feeding the nation in the most sustainable way, lowering our carbon footprint and being part of the solution on climate change.

Essential to addressing the many challenges we face is investment. We can maintain our cutting edge, drive the green growth agenda and embrace the potential of advanced manufacturing through capital investment, but unfortunately industry here remains at a disadvantage to our regional competitors. We are the only region on these islands without a processor capital grant, and we need to address this competitive disadvantage. A capital support scheme would further drive innovation, boost productivity, and add value. Now is the time to level the playing field.

George Mullan

NIFDA MEMBERSHIP

We are passionate about Northern Ireland Food and Drink, and are committed with our members to growing a sustainable, internationally competitive food and drink industry. NIFDA currently represents 120 companies of all sizes from across the sector, and this number continues to grow. This year, we were delighted to welcome new members and associate members, including McColgans Quality Foods, Manfreight Limited, Diversey, Ecolab Ltd and Digital Trader Services.

Another new associate member this year is Belfast City Council, joining Armagh City, Banbridge & Craigavon Borough Council, Mid & East Antrim Borough Council and Fermanagh & Omagh Borough Council. Our report into the food and drink sector, produced last year by EY, found that our industry is key to supporting jobs across the geographic spread of Northern Ireland. It makes sense for us to work together, we look forward to further developing our relationships with the councils to unleash the potential of Northern Ireland Food and Drink.

MESSAGE FROM NIFDA EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

It is hard to overstate the importance of food and drink to the Northern Ireland economy. Together with the other sectors we work with across the food supply chain, we are a £4.9 billion industry, supporting some 113,000 workforce jobs in communities right across Northern Ireland. Northern Ireland Food and Drink continues to grow, feeding some 10 million people across these islands and beyond every year.

I have spoken before about our resilience, which was clearly demonstrated in the response of NIFDA members to the Covid-19 pandemic. Presented with a once in a lifetime challenge, firms had to rapidly respond to changes in demand and transform factories to keep our key workers safe as they continued to feed the nation. Special commendation has to go to NIFDA Vice Chair Ursula Lavery for her role in coordinating the development of industry guidance on Covid-19. Her Outstanding Leadership in NI Food and Drink award, presented at this year's NIFDA awards, was more than well deserved.

I was delighted with the return of the awards this year, our first since 2019. It was a great opportunity to come together and celebrate the very best of our industry. We had some new categories this year to showcase how the industry is catering to new consumer and customer trends, including the category that attracted the most entries this year: environmental sustainability. Food and drink firms want to help fight climate change, and are doing so by making processes more sustainable, reducing packaging and creating new products with a lower carbon footprint.

Key to the success of our award-winning food and drink companies is the ingenuity, determination, and hard work of people across the supply chain, from farm to fork. We are innovative to the core and always up to the challenge. That drive to find new solutions will see our industry grow further while becoming more sustainable – and our companies will earn even more accolades.

NIFDA ANNUAL DINNER 2021

NIFDA celebrated 25 years at the organisation's Annual Dinner in 2021. Held in partnership with HSBC UK, the event took place at Belfast's Hilton Hotel on Thursday 21st October and was attended by over 200 industry leaders and political representatives. Tesco UK & ROI CEO Jason Tarry was keynote speaker.

NIGDA AGM 2022

The 26th Northern Ireland Food and Drink Association AGM took place on 25th May 2022 at Craigavon Civic Centre, with DAERA Permanent Secretary Katrina Godfrey as guest keynote speaker. The meeting provided NIFDA members the opportunity to engage with Katrina to share perspectives on their businesses and the challenges and opportunities facing the food and drink sector here.

The AGM also saw the appointment of George Mullan as the new Chair of the NIFDA board. George is Managing Director of ABP in Northern Ireland and takes over from immediate past Chair Nick Whelan. He will hold the position for two years. Ursula Lavery, Technical and R&D Director Europe, Moy Park, has been appointed as Vice Chair.

Speaking after his appointment, George Mullan said:

"This is a pivotal time for Northern Ireland food and drink, as we seek to continue to grow the sector while navigating our way through the challenges of sustainable growth, climate change, food inflation and supply chain issues. We cannot address these challenges alone. Progress in these areas will require investment and collaboration with stakeholders and all levels of government. We need to get the new Assembly up and running, and for Ministers to be appointed to champion the industry at this pivotal moment.

"Food and drink is a key strategic sector in the Northern Ireland economy. We are the largest single manufacturing industry here, generating £4.9 billion value added, and supporting 113,000 workforce jobs across the supply chain. We feed 10 million people worldwide, and our industry is world leading when it comes to quality, innovation, sustainability, animal welfare and commercial success.

"I am confident that we can boost our growth, build upon our sustainability credentials and play a key role in Northern Ireland's economic recovery with the right level of collaboration between industry and government," George concluded.

NIFDA AWARDS

Innovative local companies celebrated at NI food and drink awards

Some 400 guests turned out in style to celebrate Northern Ireland's top food and drink companies at the 2022 Northern Ireland Food and Drink Awards. A total of 13 awards were presented at the gala ceremony, hosted by the BBC's Mark Simpson in the Crowne Plaza Hotel, Belfast.

Hosted by NIFDA and supported by principal sponsor firmus energy, the awards are widely recognised as a key indicator of quality and success for food manufacturers and processors, offering local companies an invaluable opportunity to showcase innovative, quality products in front of key customers and stakeholders.

This year's awards were bigger than ever, with new additions including the Environmental Sustainability Award and Healthier Product Innovation Award.

The four firmus energy Best New product awards were picked up by Dale Farm in the large company category with Dromona Lactose Free Sliced cheese, Genesis Bakery in the medium company category for its Meringue A Tang Biscake; while Hinch Distillery collected the small company category award for Hinch Whiskey, with Karri Kitchen Ltd named highly commended for Mango Chicken Curry. Cookstown-based Big Pot Co won the micro company award with Vegan Sweet Potato Soup, and received highly commended for its Vegan Butternut Squash and Chipotle Bean Soup in the same category.

Congratulating the winners on the night, Michael Bell, Executive Director, NIFDA said:

"Food and drink is one of Northern Ireland's key strategic sectors, supporting some 113,000 jobs across the supply chain and generating £4.9 billion value added here annually. That commercial success is built on the passion, ingenuity and hard work of food and drink companies of all sizes right across Northern Ireland. The awards are a celebration of those companies, and the people within them.

"On behalf of all of us at NIFDA, I would like to thank everyone who entered, our event sponsors and our expert judges – this event would not be possible without their hard work and support. Our congratulations go to all of tonight's winners. They should be proud of their achievements, and we look forward to their continued growth and further success in the future."

CAREERS IN FOOD AND DRINK

A tightening labour market in recent times caused by Brexit, Covid-19 and other factors has led to a greater focus on recruitment strategies for food and drink companies of all sizes. In June of this year NIFDA and Food & Drink Sector Skills launched a forum for food and drink companies to discuss this challenge. Hosted at CAFRE, with input from educational and recruitment industry experts, the 'food and drink call to action' meeting discussed the current market situation, how agri-food is perceived by the employee marketplace, how other sectors are tackling this problem and how initiatives such as the apprenticeship levy and labour market partnerships with local government can benefit local companies.

It was agreed that a body led by NIFDA should be formed to provide a forum for food and drink companies to share insights on agri-food recruitment, how to facilitate better retention of employees, and how investing in skills and infrastructure can help going forward.

ADVANCED FOOD MANUFACTURING NETWORK

In August 2020 NIFDA commissioned the Advanced Food Manufacturing network, with a focus on the potential of digital technologies to tackle recruitment shortfalls, improve health and safety standards and enhance overall productivity. Supported by Invest Northern Ireland through its Collaborative Growth Programme, the Automated Food Manufacture network is exploring how digital technologies can be integrated into production processes to boost growth for the industry in Northern Ireland.

Conducted by agri-food specialists Birnie Consultancy, the goal of the network is to establish the current situation in terms of automation and use of data from a range of NI food companies as well as identifying support and gaps. To this end, Birnie consulted with 10 Northern Ireland food companies to deliver a report, published in December, which outlines five specific areas of need: the use of data for management; the key importance of automation to productivity and profitability gains; the availability of training and skills development; the importance of making connections to raise awareness of solutions that can maximise the productivity of food production; and the need for an Advanced Food Manufacturing Network to help to move the sector forwards.

The analysis and outcomes of this report are given after a careful study of Food Manufacturing in Northern Ireland and input from each company in the form of a comprehensive 4 Manufacturing survey and continual engagement with both the Consultants and other businesses through our Advanced Food Manufacturing Network.

The report can be viewed and downloaded from the NIFDA website.

ADDITIONAL FUNDING SECURED TO SUPPORT EXPORTS AND SUSTAINABILITY IN THE FOOD AND DRINK SECTOR

NIFDA continues to work with EU regional partners to promote Northern Ireland food and drink, share expertise and secure support for local businesses. Representing Northern Ireland industry on two EU-funded projects, we have been working with other organisations from neighbouring regions to build on our expertise in exports and sustainability and ensure SMEs within the sector can benefit from funding opportunities.

ATLANTIC FOOD AREA EXPORT

The Atlantic Food Area Export project, an EU-funded food and drink programme for SMEs, has secured additional funding to support food exports for SMEs in the food and drink sector, with small and medium sized food businesses in Northern Ireland set to benefit.

The innovative programme has to date provided training and mentoring to food and drink SMEs across the Atlantic Area regions of Ireland, Northern Ireland, France, Spain and Portugal.

The additional funding of over €350,000 is aimed at helping food and drink SMEs undertake market study tours and trade missions across five European markets, and to help provide further training and support services for SMEs, allowing them to analyse their current status and formulating recommendations for action towards developing exports.

AREA HEALTHY FOOD ECO-SYSTEM (AHFES)

Northern Ireland food and drink SMEs are also set to benefit from additional funding to support sustainability in the sector, secured by the EU AHFES programme. The additional funding of over €235,000 is aimed at the sustainability component of food manufacturing, and to help provide further training and support services for SMEs, helping them to analyse their current status and formulating recommendations for action towards incorporating sustainability practices.

With more activity to come, NIFDA looks forward to continuing its work with our partners in regions across the Atlantic Area to promote and secure support for innovative food and drink SMEs and encourage sustainability through innovation.

NIFDA PACKAGING FORUM

NIFDA works collaboratively with our members and external partners to discuss challenges, share best practice and map our solutions. In 2019 we established a packaging forum, bringing together representatives from major companies across the food and drink sector in Northern Ireland to explore ways in which government and industry can work together to deliver practical solutions on plastics and packaging.

Plastic waste is an issue the industry is taking seriously. As a society we need to rethink our use of plastics, and at a government level there needs to be investment in better recycling infrastructure, and a reform of the system to drive up recycling rates. Our Packaging Forum meets on a regular basis to discuss these issues, share best practice and engage with government to assess what business can do to improve sustainability and be part of the solution. Together with Invest NI and Cafre colleagues, we are hosting an event on the Future of Food Packaging next year which will explore all of these areas in depth with expert input from across industry.

Our future plans include expanding this platform into a broader NIFDA Packaging Excellence Forum, bringing in packaging manufacturing and recycling companies to ensure even greater supply chain collaboration as together we play our part in bolstering the sustainability credentials of Northern Ireland Food and Drink.
